DOZEN LIVES LOST IN ACCI- DENTS SUN.

Several Injured in Dixon Vicinity Over Weekend

Chicago, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Week-end automobile fatalities in Illinois claimed 12 lives, almost evenly divided between Chicago and the downstate area, reports showed today.

At Ottawa, Albert Monasterelli, 52, died last night of injuries suffered earlier in the day when his car overturned near Starved Rock State Park. Lyle Thomas, Lewis-town attorney, was fatally injured near Champaign when his car collided with a milk truck. A youthful Cerro Gordo bicyclist, Bernard Hall, 15, rode his wheel into the path of an automobile and was killed.

At Monmouth, Miss Marjorie Hillman, 17, Weaver, Ia., died when the car in which she rode overturned.

The East St. Louis area was the scene of three fatalities. Mrs. C. E. Birkner, St. Louis; Volney Lyle, 65, Venice, and Miss Sallie Morton, 67, St. Louis, were killed in separate accidents.

In Chicago, death overtook five persons as cars skidded on streets slippery with rain.

SEVERAL LOCAL ACCIDENTS

Mrs. Andrew Giani and daughter Corrine of this city and Mrs. Sundberg and Miss Harper of Chicago, who have been guests at the Giani home, figured in a serious automobile accident Friday evening about 9 o'clock on the Lincoln Highway about four miles east of Fulton while returning to Dixon from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where they had visited with relatives. At the dangerous curve, the Giani car left the paving and turned end over end in a ten foot ditch.

Miss Harper was thrown through the windshield and sustained a long scalp wound. Ten-year-old Corrine Giani was the worst injured of the occupants of the car. She suffered a compound fracture of the right shoulder and a long scalp wound which required ten stitches to close. Giani and Mrs. Sundberg were bruised but not badly injured. All were taken to Fulton where their injuries were dressed and were then brought to Dixon by J. G. Miller of Fenton, Miss Corrine and Miss Harper were taken to the Dixon hospital and later removed to the Giani home. The car was only slightly damaged.

Crash This Morning

Occupants of a car driven by Daniel Enright of Sterling, in which his brother, Edward, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grennan, all of Sterling, were passengers, left the Lincoln Highway paving two miles west of Dixon about 2 o'clock this morning and crashed into a pole, which was snapped off. Occupants of the wrecked car stated that they were forced from the paving by an east bound truck which did not stop. Mrs. Grennan sustained cuts and bruises and was suffering considerably from shock. Her husband sustained a broken bone in the left ankle. The driver, Daniel Enright was cut, about the head. All were taken to the Dixon hospital where their injuries were dressed.

Clyde Ray and Miss Mae Daniels of this city narrowly escaped being killed about 2 o'clock Sunday morning on the route 26 paving, one mile south of Polo, the latter being almost scalped when she was thrown head first through the windshield. They were returning to Dixon from Freeport

PLEDGE BROKEN G. O. P. ANSWER FOR ROOSEVELT

Republicans Measure the President by Own Talk, Program

Washington, Sept. 9.—(AP)—The Republican national committee says industry wants "a complete rest cure"—not just a "breathing spell" assured by President Roosevelt.

Referring to the President's exchange of letters with Roy Howard, publisher, the committee said in its weekly pamphlet yesterday the letters "breed fear instead of inspiring calmness."

At St. Charles, Mo., Senator Dickinson (R-Iowa) told a party gathering that the administration's course "can only end in national disaster." He said the prospect of "crushing taxes and a standard of living likely to be lower rather than higher for the future."

Col. Frank Knox, Chicago Daily News publisher who has been mentioned as a possible Republican presidential candidate, said in Boston that "it would require more than verbal assurance x x x to bring about that restoration of confidence which is essential to permanent recovery."

Col. Knox said that because of the New Deal's "repudiation" of "the platform upon which the Democrats appealed to the people and upon which they won their election x x x the mere promise of the President is by no means sufficient."

The Republican national committee's pamphlet said the exchange of letters "more likely was designed to afford Howard a fresh-

THREE SLAYERS, TRUSTIES, FLEE MENARD PRISON

Officials Say Escape Fol- lowed Drinking Party at Prison

Chester, Ill., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Three trustees, all life term murderers, walked away from the Southern Illinois penitentiary at Menard last night and officials believed that the escape followed a drinking party.

The fugitives, for whom a wide search was made today, are Howard Bethel, 38, Collinsville; Johnnie Wilderman, 33, of Decatur, and Richard Lane, 38, sentenced from Saline county. Bethel was sentenced in 1920; Wilderman in 1922, and Lane in 1930.

"We have evidence," Deputy Warden Joseph Montgomery said today, "that whiskey has been sold to convicts, and we have grounds to believe that the three were drinking last night. I believe they were made reckless by the liquor and fled without previous planning."

Seen at Resort

As trustees, the prisoners had the freedom of outside prison grounds until 8:45 P. M. They were observed by guards at 7:30 P. M., but an investigation showed they were seen at 8:30 P. M. at a resort near the Mississippi river.

An empty whiskey bottle was found in Lane's room.

Bethel, a Bertillon expert, has served in the prison's finger print bureau for fifteen years, where he became familiar with the usual procedure in pursuing escaped prisoners. Lane worked in the officers' dormitory where all three men had quarters. Wilderman was employed in the prison office.

Are Intelligent

Montgomery said all three men were of high intelligence and weigh about 165 pounds each. When they left the prison they wore white shirts, black jackets and blue trousers.

Officials received a report that a trio answering their description attempted to cross the Ohio river at Cairo, Ill., at 5 A. M. today. When they found a ferry was not operating they inquired concerning a route to Chicago.

Fifty-Bed Tuberculosis Preventorium Under WPA Financing is Sought Here

County Committee's Appeal May Bring Federal Aid

A fifty-bed tuberculosis preventorium for sickly and undernourished children in Lee county may be constructed on the "sanitarium site" east of Dixon if plans now under way here are successful, it was learned today from Edward A. Jones, chairman of the Lee County Tuberculosis Committee, volunteer health organization.

Co-operating in the project locally are the Lee County Board of Supervisors, the Sanitarium Board, the Tuberculosis Committee, and interested individuals. An appeal has been made to the Federal Works Progress Administration, through the district office in Rockford, to accept the plan as a work project and to supply relief labor and a part of the building materials. There is every indication that Federal aid will be forthcoming, Mr. Jones said.

Supported by Stamp Sales Title to the institution will rest with the Lee County Sanitarium Board, official agency in charge of tuberculosis work here, but it will be maintained and operated by the Lee County Tuberculosis Committee, a branch of the Illinois Tuberculosis Association, with money raised by the annual sale of Christmas seals.

"An institution for the prevention of tuberculosis among children is perhaps the most needed factor now lacking in Lee County's tuberculosis control program, in the opinion of local physicians," Atty. Jones said in discussing the proposed institution. "The preventorium should not be confused with a tuberculosis sanitarium. No active cases of tuberculosis or infectious diseases of any kind will be accepted at the health camp. Our purpose is to take undernourished children, those who have lived in close contact with tuberculosis, and those who have tuberculosis infections, and build up

SECOND BLOOD TRANSFUSION GIVEN TODAY

Kingfish's Would-Be Assassin a Baton Rouge Physician

(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press)

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 9.—With a political empire in Louisiana hanging in the balance, Senator Huey P. Long lost strength today in his fight to recover from an abdominal bullet wound inflicted last night in the state Capitol by a son-in-law of one of Long's opponents.

Attending physicians kept their silence. A bulletin from the Senator's hospital room was overdue. But over the Our Lady of the Lake hospital, general concern was felt.

Reliable reports from the hospital said the Senator was passing blood, that his pulse was quickening and that a second blood transfusion was given. Callers left his hospital quarters with grave faces.

Bills Are Passed

As the Senator fought to gain strength, the House of Representatives—in a special session opened Saturday night under Long's personal direction—rushed through passage the bills aimed to strengthen his "dictatorship"; and a corner's jury heard the dramatic story of the attempt on his life.

A tremor of premonition had prevailed in the statehouse since the special session of the legislature convened Saturday night and extra precautions were taken last night.

The house had just adjourned until 10 A. M. today and spectators from the crowded galleries were pouring downstairs and into the ornate main floor of the Capitol when the fusillades of gunfire broke out.

Most persons failed to realize it was gunfire and for a few moments there was no reaction but when bullets continued to fly women screamed and men shouted and scores scurried back into the house chamber and clung to the wall to escape the withering fire.

Lost Long for Time

The bodyguards who ridden the body of the assailant, Dr. C. A. Weiss, Jr., with bullets, momentarily lost Long as he staggered down the stairs to the basement and was whisked to Our Lady of the Lake sanitarium, just across a small lake from the Capitol.

Wild confusion then prevailed and persons gathered in groups all over the building, hearing rumors that Long had been twice wounded but unable to confirm them immediately.

The corridor near Dr. Weiss' body, which lay face downward, was crowded for about 15 minutes before state police cleared it out. State police took stations around the building with automatic rifles and pistols.

News Spread Rapidly

The news spread like wildfire throughout the city and within a few minutes hundreds of automobiles blocked the streets around the Capitol and the hospital. It was more than an hour before officers could untangle the jam. Police then were stationed at the roads to turn aside all persons without permits.

State policemen were stationed on the steps of the hospital and more took their places inside. Only physicians and administration officials were allowed inside.

Long was taken to an upper floor where, just before he was operated on he said:

"Nobody is to give statements." One of the physicians said that just before the senators went under the knife he prayed almost inaudibly as the doctor held his hand.

Mrs. Long Arrived

Within little more than two hours after the shooting Mrs. Long arrived by automobile with their three children, Rose, Russell, and Palmer Reed Long.

She moved slowly through the hospital corridor followed by the children showing perfect control but her eyes showed evidence of weeping.

Since the senator had begun to tighten his powers over the state, crushing political enemies in a series of legislative acts, there has been free talk of his possible assassination. Long of late appeared to suffer from nerves.

Describing the shooting, Public Service Commissioner James O'Connor said:

Second Blood—

Witnessed Shooting.

"I was standing in the basement of the capitol and saw Senator Long stumbling down the hall. He said to me: 'Jimmy, my boy, I am shot.'"

"I threw my arms under him and drew a pistol to protect him from anyone else and hollered to several boys in the highway department. Then I picked him up and took him in a car to the hospital."

Dr. Weiss was immaculately dressed in white linen. As he drew the pistol from his shirt front, John B. Fournet, a justice of the state supreme court, grabbed at the gun and deflected it. Paul Votler and Murphy Roden and other bodyguards with the senator opened fire with automatic pistols.

Weiss slumped face downward on the floor, blood flowing from 30 wounds.

Staggered Down Step.
Long, holding his hand to his side, staggered down the basement step, while crowds swarmed around Weiss' body.

A spectator said Long went downstairs with blood streaming from his mouth and walked slowly around the floor, past the restaurant and out of the door as hundreds rushed from corridor to corridor in the state house.

State police quickly cleared the main floor of the building and permitted no one to enter there.

The crowd that collected around the dead man was quickly pushed back and out of the building by guards.

Going to the home of the slain man's father, Cal Abraham, representing the Baton Rouge State-Times, said he arrived there shortly after the elder Weiss had left. Abraham said he asked for a picture of the dead man, not knowing the person to whom he spoke was the mother. Told of her son's death, Mrs. Weiss was quoted as saying:

"Oh, God, we've been opposed to Long but I did not think he would do a thing like that."

Many Offered Blood.
When it became known Long would have to be given a transfusion, hundreds of persons offered to submit samples of blood.

After a test, it was found the blood of Lieutenant Governor James Noe was perfect for the purpose and it was asked.

The Lieutenant Governor called Mrs. Long by telephone to come to Baton Rouge from New Orleans.

Mrs. Long and the children reached the senator's bedside shortly after midnight. Governor O. K. Allen was at the hospital two hours before the senator's family.

Mrs. Long said the senator, before leaving New Orleans for the legislative session, told her of a premonition that he might not return.

Hal Premonition.
"I may not come back, but I'll die fighting," she quoted her husband.

Dr. Weiss was graduated from Tulane Medical School in 1927. In the class annual, his prophecy read, "With knowledge aplenty and friends galore, he is bound to go out and make the world take notice."

The present special session of the legislature was termed "a Mother Hubbard session" by Senator Long, because of the many subjects included in the call.

The bullet entered Senator's Long body on the upper right side and punctured the colon in two places, emerging from the back. Unless complications set in, physicians believed he would recover.

Always Guarded.
Dr. Weiss' body lay on the state House corridor floor for more than an hour until it could be viewed by the coroner.

Identification of Weiss was established by Dr. Thomas B. Bird, East Baton Rouge parish coroner, and Joe W. Bates, assistant superintendent of the state bureau of identification.

Long for more than a year had feared for his life. Whenever he was in Louisiana, he was accompanied in public by a group of bodyguards armed with pistols and blackjacks. But the guards usually walked on the side and rear, leaving Senator exposed from the front.

A coroner's jury called to investigate the circumstances of the death of Dr. Weiss, recessed today to 4 P. M. (Central Standard Time) after receiving testimony from two witnesses.

At the opening of the inquest the following statement was made by the coroner.

30 Bullet Holes.
"The body was examined by the jury and the coroner and it was found to have 30 bullet holes in the front and 29 on the back of the body, two in the head, one penetrating the left eye and the other the tip of the nose."

"It was impossible to tell which of the body wounds were entrances and which were exits. Two bullets were recovered from the body, one a .45 and one a .38."

With armed guards standing at the doors, the Louisiana House of Representatives today passed a bill sponsored by Long to remove an anti-Long voting district under the jurisdiction of Judge Pavy, father-in-law of Dr. Weiss, to another district which is favorable to Long.

As the first bill to be passed, it will change the 13th and 15th judicial districts to place St. Landry parish, where Judge Pavy has always enrolled a large bloc of anti-Long votes, in the same district with LaFayette, Acadia and Vermilion, the latter three always being in the ranks of the Senators' supporters. Evangeline remains in a district by itself.

The bill was passed by a vote of 73 to 14 as Earl Long, brother of the Senator, stood chatting with friends behind the railing in the House.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Ferdinand Waggoner, who lived 43 of his 103 years with an artificial stomach composed mostly of silver tubes, is dead at St. Joseph's home here. He was believed to have been the oldest man in central Illinois. Although he had been enfeebled for several years, death came suddenly.

During the Chicago fire of 1871, Waggoner was accidentally shot in the back by a friend. After prolonged treatment, his stomach was replaced.

Waggoner came here sixty years ago and worked in greenhouses for many years.

WHO IS MAD?

By Joseph Fort Newton

“LOYD George, in his War

Memoirs, tells a story of the late Jane Addams, one of the greatest and most gracious women America has ever known, whose recent death left many of us lonely.

In 1916 Jane Addams called upon him at Number 11 Downing Street, on her return from a tour of Germany, Austria and France.

She wished to tell him all about it and talk to him about peace!

In Vienna she had talked with the Austrian Premier. She explained to him that she was trying to find out whether it was not possible to bring the horrible war then raging to a peaceful end.

“I have no doubt you are saying to yourself at this moment, this American woman is quite mad,” he said. “Mad? Do you see a door?” he said, and she thought he was about to send her away.

“Every hour of the day,” he exclaimed, “and far into the night men come through that door and say to me: We want more men for the trenches—we want more guns, more ammunition, more money. Mad, indeed? You are the only sensible person who has passed through that door for a long time.”

Who is mad? Those who pile up guns and bombs, fan to flames old fears and new hatreds, and beat the tom-toms of war, or those who work against heavy odds for peace, justice and fair play among men?

At least Jane Addams was a sane soul in a mad world. The daughter of “old Quaker Addams,” the friend and fellow-worker of Lincoln, she did not believe in the horrible gods of war now so widely worshipped.

In Halsted Street, Chicago, “half a block from hell,” as they used to say, she built Hull House, a home of light and love and human service, and for more than forty years worked to build a city of God.

It is such souls, sane with a divine lucidity, deeply believing and greatly daring, who help us to keep faith with the best in spite of the worst and in a gentler world they will be honored.

They may seem to be mad, in face of the facts, but the madness of one age becomes the sanity of the next and the next!

Some New Ideas for Tasty Sandwiches

If you give evening bridge parties and have exhausted your sandwich ideas perhaps some of these may prove delectable novelties.

Kipped herring mashed in its own oil and spread on thin strips of toast go well with an evening beverage. A sprinkling of vinegar and some peppers, ground, add just that necessary unusual and delicious flavor.

Or you might care to use peanut butter and to save it from being obvious and dull cut a number of thin slices of cucumber and put one on each peanut butter covering, adding a dash of lime juice for flavoring. If you want your cucumber slices to look dressy use a fork around the edges to give them a frizzled look.

Only One Story

Chicago, Sept. 9.—(AP)—There's only one story involved in this affair of two weddings. Recently Betty Ennarino, her brother, Thomas, and their parents moved into a first floor apartment. They met the Capra family who lives in the apartment above them.

Sept. 29 Betty will move up one flight when she becomes the bride of Anthony Capra. Anthony's sister, Rose, will move downstairs the same day as the bride of Thomas Ennarino.

Lucile Trautman and William Hubbell Wed Beautiful Ceremony

A very beautiful wedding was held at the First M. E. church of Dixon on Sunday morning, Sept. 8th, at eight o'clock, when Miss Lucile Trautman became the bride of William E. Hubbell, both of this city. The Rev. Gilbert Stansell performed the single ring ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated with colorful hydrangeas and ferns.

Preceding the ceremony Clinton Fahrney played several organ selections, after which Dean Ball, accompanied by Mr. Fahrney, played a violin solo, “Liebestraum.” At the close of this number, Mr. Fahrney played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered the church.

The lovely bride wore a gown of green sheer wool with trimming of black sateen braid. Her hat, military in style, and other accessories, were in black, and she wore a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. Frank Wilcox of Dallas, Texas, who attended the bride, wore a brown silk ensemble with shoulder bouquet of Talsman roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Henry Hubbell. Lester Hinkle and Robert Reed served as ushers.

Following the ceremony, a delicious four course breakfast was served at the Colonial Inn. Grand Detour, to forty-five relatives and friends. The tables were gaily decorated with autumn flowers, with favors and other table appointments in rose and green.

Out of town guests included Miss Ruth Prentice and Albert Wolf of Earlville; Mr. and Mrs. David Law of Villa Park; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Schmalzing of Sterling; Mrs. Frank Wilcox of Dallas, Texas; Mrs. Wilcox and Miss Lola Wilcox of Oak Park; and Mr. and Mrs. Powell Stauffer of Polo.

The bride was charming in her traveling ensemble of black silver-toned wool and black satin with bell sleeves and nailhead trimming. The young couple have left for a two week tour of the east. On their return, Mr. Hubbell will resume his position with the Montgomery Ward Company in Dixon and they will make their home at 1010 Highland Avenue. Their many friends join in wishing them every happiness.

America

At the opera, as every opera goer knows, the pleasure of having a fine overture is often marred by the noise of conversation and late arrivals. Yesterday's concert therefore, gave opportunity of hearing the overture to Rossini's “Barber of Seville,” under highly favorable conditions.

If a vote were taken to determine which of the orchestral symphonies of the great masters is highest in popular favor, it is quite possible that the choice would fall to Schubert's Unfinished Symphony in B Minor.

A certain interest in this work is of course born of curiosity aroused by the mystery surrounding the caption “Unfinished,” but each hearing of the two movements which Schubert has given us, reveals their finished beauty as the different themes, as exceptionally melodious, are presented and developed by the various sections of the orchestra.

The performance of this work yesterday afternoon, may therefore be regarded as a notable musical event for players and listeners alike.

In the duet for two violin-cellos, Robert Smith and Mr. Samuelson gave a truly beautiful rendition of a “Serenade” by Piatelli, the composition being almost of great purity, sweetness and power, as the three numbers listed on the program, required.

Able accompanists for the afternoon included Mrs. H. A. Smith, for Mr. Samuelson and Robert Smith; Mrs. Lola Harnd Sterling for Mr. Kotz; Mrs. W. H. Haefliger for the orchestra.

To Mr. Samuelson praise is due for bringing artists of high grade to Dixon, as well as for the presentation of the works of some of the great masters.

Sensitive Subjects Provide Puzzles for Teachers

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

A teacher told me she had been accused last year of talking about taxes in school and in late parent had gone to the school board about it. “We’re on relief,” he had said “and instantly it gave every boy and girl of unfortunate families a black mark in the eyes of the children whose fathers pay taxes on property. A teacher has no business referring to it at all.”

She explained to me that the lesson had concerned taxes, the subject being civil-government. “I stated among other things besides protection, improvements and expenses of running a city,” she said, “that part of the money went to help people who needed it. That was all. The children themselves took it up. I cannot help class feeling. I might just as well have skipped the Civil War and the Emancipation Proclamation because I had colored children in the room.”

“Things do seem to be closing in on the teacher,” I remarked. “In the chaos of feeling today it must be terribly hard not to offend. I feel particularly sympathetic with the high-school teacher who tries to speak objectively of the Germany of today, or the Italian preparations or the Japanese question. In fact it has gotten so that a reference to the World War and its results can start real fire-works.”

Students Bait Her

“That’s true,” she exclaimed emphatically. “Helen, my sister teaches in a high school. She dreads history and political economy so much that she can’t sleep at night. The boys seem to be waiting to bait her on her ideas about Communism and Socialism. They ask her what she thinks and then if she tries to explain some parents writes her that if she does it again she’ll be reported.”

“Why do they include such dynamite in the curriculum when even seniors are not ready for it. Students lack the experience and tolerance needed to discuss such subjects intelligently. History used to be facts, dates and all that. It isn’t done that way any more.”

“Going back to your own case and taxes,” I said “perhaps you could placate everybody by showing that nearly everyone is taxed. Explain the sales-tax and also show how renters are actually in most cases paying the property-taxes of the owners. It is included in the monthly rent, usually outside of interest on the investment.”

Fault of the Times

She agreed to do everything in her power to avoid further trouble.

The times are responsible for super-sensitiveness among our people. It cannot all be helped because a worried people are prone to imagine slights in no way intended.

Parents feel strongly and the children reflect it. Certain words of the school-room may be misinterpreted and thus misquoted at home. Few teachers, I am positive, would willingly or wittingly offend a child.

THE YEAR 2035

The American Chemical society, convening in New York, had as its keynote a prediction of what things will be like in the year 2035. Among the forecasts were the stabilization of one's age; interplanetary travel and a host of conveniences in the matter of housing and clothing.

One's first impulse is to scoff at such predictions as utterly fantastic. Yet we have evidence every day of accomplishments which, if they had been foreseen in 1835 would have aroused the scoffers. Only a short time ago an American airplane flew to the Hawaiian islands in seventeen hours, guided by a radio beacon and powered with engines so sturdy that the pilot had to fly a zig-zag course to keep from reaching his goal before the announced hour.

Any one predicting such a trip 100 years ago might have been locked in a padded cell.

In files of newspapers for August, 1897, appears a statement from a New York source attempting to explain Marconi's wireless. The authority quoted dismissed the invention lightly, as something of a curiosity. The burden of the message was that Marconi really could communicate without wires, but that the invention could have no extended use.

When Jules Verne wrote some of his pseudo-scientific fiction long ago he purposely made it fantastic with the intention of keeping it interesting. He wished to produce thrillers. One of his characters, the redoubtable Phineas Fogg, wagered that he could circumnavigate the globe in eighty days. From there on the yarn is replete with accounts of thrilling speed which took Fogg around the earth in time to win the bet. That was a good narrative, widely read. But if Verne had made Fogg go around the world in the time recorded by Wiley Post, no publisher would have had the audacity to print such an absurdity.

We are reminded frequently of sober discussions occasioned by the speed attained by early trains. It was argued in schoolhouse, church and elsewhere that the tremendous speed of thirty miles an hour might easily be too much for the human system to endure. What if some of the doubters of those days had heard predictions of our new streamlined trains that can average 100 miles an hour?

It is too early to suggest that we have reached the practical limit in speed and in ease of communication, but it is good to see that scientists are considering human comfort and health, as well. It is good also, to see that no one arose and smote the American Chemical society's prophet verbally. If we have attained such mental maturity that we no longer doubt something we know nothing about, we have made a long step forward. The going will be easier for those who understand such things.

We should remember the frequent utterance of Edison to the effect that we have barely scratched the surface of science.

ACTIONS AND WORDS

Did it ever occur to you that people of few words, people who are doing the day's work, people who go through life bearing their own burdens and a little more have done more for "the little fellow," have done more for "the laboring man" than all the politicians in all the history of this country, who ballyhoo for votes as "friends of the common people."

Think over the things which you know have happened during the depression. Remember that in the early years of it only paupers were entitled to public funds and that unemployed who owned equities in their dwellings were not paupers. Unemployed were supported from private funds, the source of which often was unknown to the public. Small business carried thousands, perhaps millions, of persons who were not essential to its operation. They didn't go out and shout it from the platform. They didn't go about telling the "little fellow" what they were going to give him out of somebody else's money.

Of course there are no statistics upon which to base any comparisons, but we suggest to those who are disposed to think about it at all that they estimate what has been done for the unfortunate by those who are most frequently assailed in these days, and what has been done by those who are out seeking votes and spending other people's money.

A GOOD NAVAL REFORM

The U. S. navy has decided to depart from its time-honored policy of insisting that every officer, no matter what his specialty, take his regular turn at ordinary sea duty. Henceforth expert aviation officers, especially those gifted in design of planes and engines, will be allowed to remain permanently in the posts which they are best adapted to fill.

Here is a reform in naval policy which seems to have been long overdue. For a good many years, critics have protested that the navy was reducing its own efficiency by periodically shifting its "specialists" out of their special jobs to regular quarter-deck assignments.

The new ruling should make it possible to build up a permanent corps of expert officers whose presence will mean a more efficient and up-to-date fighting fleet.

Weary Veterans Who Cheated Doom Rest By Train

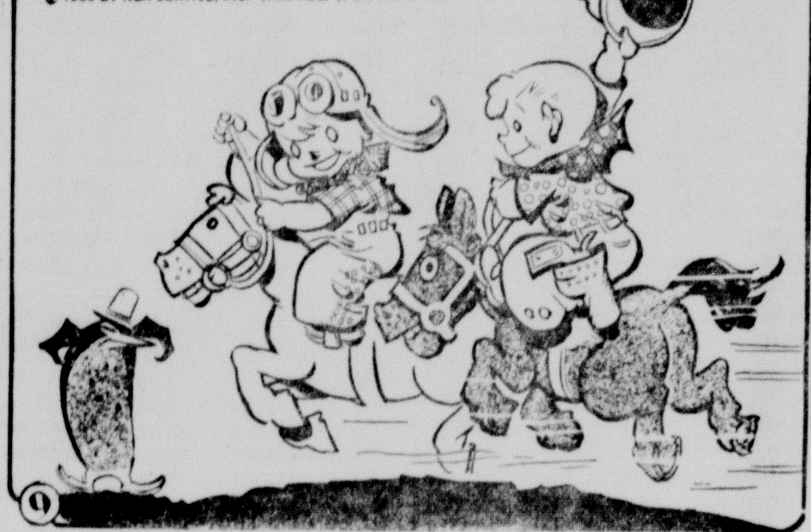

Deadly cheated by a miracle, some of the World War veterans who emerged alive from the hurricane Keys and the malthat ripped through the Florida island, taking hundreds of lives and causing huge property loss, are shown here, resting alongside a wrecking train sent to the Keys with a crew to rebuild the shattered rail line. With death toll among the veterans estimated at more than 300, a federal probe was started, to find if precautions to evacuate them before the storm were neglected.

THE TINYMITES

Story by HAL COCHRAN

Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The Tinymites all laughed in glee, because it was a sight to see Wee Goldy racing 'cross the ground as fast as she could go.

The fat old pig, amid loud squeals, kept at the frightened youngster's heels. "Why is she so scared?" wee Duncy said. "That's what I'd like to know."

"I wouldn't let that pig chase me. He's just as fat as he can be, and one punch in the tummy, I am sure, would make him stop."

"Oh, don't do that," a cowboy said. "Just try and capture him, instead. Why hurt the beast in any way, when you can make him flop?"

"Oh, you want me to tackle him," said Duncy. "O. K. I'm in trim. In just about a minute we'll both sprawl upon the ground."

"I played a game of football once. At tackling I am not a dunce. It don't be long till Goldy'll know that she is safe and sound."

The next thing that the Tinies knew, right through the air we Duncy flew. The pig, however, was too smart. It jumped aside just right.

Poor Duncy rolled upon the ground and then sat up and looked around. He saw the Tinies laughing, as the pig raced out of sight.

"Course Goldy stopped right in her track and said, 'I hope he won't come back.' And then she thanked wee Duncy for the kind thing he had done."

"I planned a tackle," Duncy said, "but scared the pig away, instead. I'm glad I had a chance to save you. It was lots of fun."

Just then two horses raced right by, and Scouty shouted, "Me, oh my. Wee Coppy and wee Windy sure can ride. Just see them go." Then Coppy yelled, "This is a race. That's why we're setting such a pace. Which one of us is best at riding, you will shortly know."

(Coppys horse does a high jump in the next story.)

cers, we should, to be precise, speak of "peptic ulcers."

The cause of peptic ulcers is not known.

Men are more commonly afflicted with this disease than are women, the proportion being five to one.

The prevalence of peptic ulcer has definitely increased in recent years, and according to the statistics of one of the major hospitals in New York City, one's risk of developing an ulcer has doubled during the last 25 years.

The principal symptom of peptic ulcer consists of a vague pain or discomfort in the upper region of the abdomen. The pain usually comes on when the stomach is empty, that is, just before meals.

Peptic ulcers are chronic in nature. The symptoms disappear and the patient may remain free of all pain for weeks or months. Quite frequently, however, the symptoms reappear as suddenly as they disappeared.

The fundamental medical treatment for peptic ulcer is prolonged dietary management under the care of a physician. There is no specific ulcer medicine, and there are no short-cuts to a cure of peptic ulcer.

Peptic ulcer may be treated by operation, but medical experts are agreed that one should not be operated upon until a most thorough medical treatment had been tried.

There are several complications that may develop from peptic ulcer. The principal ones are perforation of the wall of the stomach or duodenum, and hemorrhage. The risk of such complications is appreciably reduced if the patient remains on the prescribed diet, abstains from alcohol and tobacco, and rests at least nine hours a night.

Cancer is rarely encountered as a complication of peptic ulcer.

The Farm Telephone Increases Farm Profits

Whether you run a truck farm, or merely sell the surplus from your garden, a telephone will be a highly profitable aid. Before trips to town, it's easy to call customers and receive orders for definite kinds and quantities of produce for delivery at specified times. Thus spoilage is reduced to a minimum and profits increased. On larger farms the general crops as well as vegetables, fruit and livestock may also be sold by telephone. In addition the telephone is a constant protection for farm and family. And its cost is small.

Liner Hurlled on Reef Can Be Saved, Engineers Say

The $3,500,000 Morgan line flagship, Dixie, shown here aground on French reef, in the Straits of Florida, can be saved, marine engineers believed, after a thorough inspection of the crippled vessel, hurled on the reef by the terrific hurricane that swept up from Cuba to take hundreds of lives and cause millions of dollars' property damage. With the 235 passengers taken off safely, work of salvage was started, no serious damage being found in either hull or double bottom.

POETS' CORNER

WHEN DADDY KISSES ME.
When daddy kisses me, I know,
He bends way down an' goes so slow,
Because he is so tall, you see,
An' I can hardly reach his knee.

I think he wants to make 'em last,
An' hates when they go slippin' past,
An' that's why he don't hurry when
He kisses me so often then.

His big, red lips 'most swallow mine,
But, O, they do feel awful fine;
An' how he loves me, O, so true,
An' watches everything I do.

When mother sends me to the store
He watches when I leave the door,
An' takes me to the railroad track,
An' gives my lips a lovin' smack.

He'll watch until I hurry by
Before there's any trains to spy,
An' then he'll turn so glad an' free
Back to his work so merrily.

"Give me a mutcher, daddy, please!"
An' then I get a kiss and squeeze.
When daddy kisses me, it seems
A fairyland in all my dreams.

Mayhap you've sipped "dawn" cocktails at Agua Caliente or hazarded a sip of pulchra further south in the land of the Senoritas, or even seen a dream walking.

But did you ever put your last "cookie" on a horned toad or see the Texas variety of an Illinois tree frog do 100 yards in 5 seconds flat?

Boy, oh boy! And the American Legion is to stage a Horned Toad Gallop tournament in Dixon as a community stunt.

Plans for this unusual derby have not as yet been completed, but are in the hands of a special committee and will be announced within the next few days. Over a hundred entries are expected to face the barrier on September 19-20 and 21st at the Legion home, and to make every effort to break the world's record of five seconds for the 25 foot course. The record is now held by "Florsheim," a Canton, Illinois, toad.

The committee appointed by Commander Fred Ruben to stage the derby consists of Gerald Jones, Walter Mueller, Rae Arnold, Wiley George, Clarence Shaver and Royal Fitzsimmons; D. C. Austin, stable boy; Walter Fallstrom, keeper of the toads and Walter Smith, digger of the ants.

Here are some of the entries that have commenced their training:

"Bottom's Up"

This entry comes from the United Cigar Store, 105 Galena. Eddie Bremmer is in charge of the training and whether it was because Eddie isn't accustomed to training toads or that the entrant is just soft so early in the racing season, will never be known. Anyhow, when "Bottom's Up" was returned to quarters after his work-out and given a cold beer he showed signs of having the bottle, ganders and heaves. Eddie called the veterinary and had him treated for everything but the heaves. Eddie figures the race might be close and "Bottom's Up" can win by a heave in the final second. Ben Bremmer will be jockey derby night.

"Dodge"

Carl Newman has announced

the entry of "Dodge" in the derby. The derby is the pride of Newman Brothers, Dodge, Plymouth and truck dealers, corner of River and Ottawa. What other toad can match this racer? Newer, bigger, has all the comforts, luxury and brilliant performance of high-priced toads with ten different economy advantages. With floating cushion wheels, seven point ventilation, safety steel body, floating power, engine mountings and hydraulic brakes, oilite springs and other favorite features. See him before making your choice of a racer.

"Rheingold"

Lee Hess is his trainer. He spends most of the day thinking of new ways of training "Rheingold." He's the fast stepping entry of Walter C. Knack, 501 West First street, and a slicker racing article has not been seen in many a moon. He glides along like greased lightning. Always holding the inside track. Lee sent him to the Kentucky Derby so that he would get the idea that speed really is the thing expected of any racer facing the barrier when the starting gun is fired.

"T-Bone"

Now, here's an entry, look out! That's a blue ribbon in them that toads. "T-Bone" is built on sturdy lines, bulldoggian, low-slung and underslung, he plows all before him. Rough and ready. "T-Bone" is entered by the Ideal Cafe, 105 First street. The beautiful girls at the counter are training "T-Bone." His diet consists of plate lunches and petting but he'll be all right if they don't turn him into a "Lounge Lizard." One look at the beautiful trainers, and the sheiks wonder why the Lord did not make them into horned toads. "T-Bone" will be a dangerous contestant.

"Plenty Grand"

This entry of Aschenbrenner's, 222 First street, and trained by Jimmie Smith, is a good racer on a dry track or any track as far as that's concerned, according to all advance dope from his training stables. Several have challenged his claim to supremacy, but all have failed to measure up. When that spotless streak flashes across the finish line, you are safe in betting that it's "Plenty Grand."

FAMOUS ATHLETES AGREE

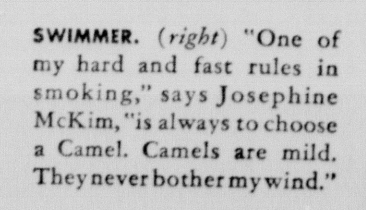

DIVER, (left) Harold ("Dutch") Smith says: "After a meet, a Camel restores my energy. And what's equally important to me—Camels never interfere with my wind."

TRACK STAR, (right) James Bausch reports: "Camels are so mild they don't get my wind or cut down my speed and endurance. And Camel is a better-tasting cigarette."

SLUGGER, (left) Lou Gehrig says: "Camels never get my wind or my nerves. I like their flavor. That famous saying, 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!' goes for me too."

SWIMMER, (right) "One of my hard and fast rules in smoking," says Josephine McKim, "is always to choose a Camel. Camels are mild. They never bother my wind."

So Mild! YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT

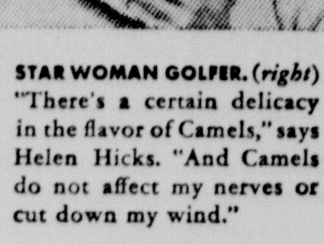

FAMOUS ATHLETES APPROVE CAMELS, SO THEY MUST HAVE REAL MILDNESS. THEY ARE GENTLE TO MY THROAT AND WHEN I'M TIRED I GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

SWIMMER, (right) Susan Vilas says: "I've discovered that Camels are mild. They don't cut down my wind or upset my nerves. And Camels are so full of delightful taste."

TENNIS ACE, (left) Bill Tilden: "I must keep in 'condition.' So I smoke Camels. They don't get my wind or upset my nerves. And I never tire of their smooth, rich taste."

STAR WOMAN GOLFER, (right) "There's a certain delicacy in the flavor of Camels," says Helen Hicks. "And Camels do not affect my nerves or cut down my wind."

GOLFER, (left) Tommy Armour: "Camels never bother my nerves or shorten my wind. And a Camel combines mildness with rich flavor in such a pleasing way."

destructive of our sound and legitimate economic structure, which made it impossible to have business recovery and which are justifiably accountable for the hostility and fright which Howard himself admits now pervade the world of business, finance and industry. x x x"

The committee enumerated Roosevelt's promises and subsequent actions since his 1932 campaign to show he has broken virtually every promise he has made. The committee did that in declaring today that the proclamation of a "breathing spell" for business would fool nobody. The committee employed the President's own yardstick, proclaimed by him in a speech at Butte, Mont., Sept. 19, 1932, to take the measure of his administration. It is:

"Remember well that attitude and method—the way we do things, not the way we say things—is the measure of our sincerity."

Cites Record in Detail
Using the President's own standard as a measure of his sincerity, the Republican national committee, analyzing his record, recalled:

That on Nov. 4, 1932, at Brooklyn, N. Y., the President said it was a libel on the credit of the United States even to intimate that it would be taken off the gold standard.

That on May 2, 1933, the Treasury sold 500 million dollars in three year bonds "payable in United States gold coin of the present standard of value."

That on June 5 the President signed a resolution of Congress abrogating the gold clause as being "against public policy."

That President Roosevelt devoted his entire speech at Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 19, 1932, denouncing bureaucracy, and promising a reduction of government expenditures.

Attacks Farm Policy, Too

That both the Democratic platform and Roosevelt denounced the policy of pegging the price of farm products, as practiced by the Federal farm board, and "the unsound policy of restricting agricultural production to the demands of domestic markets."

That on June 30, 1932, endorsing the Democratic platform and explaining its planks, the President denounced any increase in taxes on food and clothing.

The entire agricultural adjustment act is based upon a tax levied exclusively on food and clothing," the Republican survey declares.

That both the platform and Roosevelt made a pledge to remove the government "from all fields of private enterprise," whereas "the government has been thrust into every field of enterprise."

Recalls Censure of Big Taxes
That Roosevelt, at Topeka, Kas., Sept. 14, 1932, denounced the increase of state and local taxes, whereas "under the New Deal the Roosevelt administration has stopped little short of coercion to force an increase in state and local taxes to be expended in helping to finance New Deal experiments."

That in his budget message Jan. 3, 1934, the President assured the Congress he had, as of date, placed

The BLUE DOOR

Rachel Mack

© 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

RUTH WOODSON, 18 years old, an orphan, feels herself a burden on her cousin the LAWRENCES with whom she lives. She impulsively takes a bus to the mid-west to seek work, and is put off the bus when her money runs out. A storm breaks and she seeks shelter in a big old stone house with a blue door.

Just as the old woman caretaker opens the door, Ruth faints from hunger and is carried upstairs by the old woman and a young man named JOHN McNEILL. The old woman mistakes Ruth for ELAINE CHALMERS whose grandfather built the house.

Elaine Chalmers, meanwhile, at Graycastle College, vows in a sorority meeting to win the love of her first sweetheart, John McNeill.

Ruth resolves to quit the old house next morning before "PENNY," the caretaker, awakes, but overleaps. John McNeill calls and asks if he may come to dinner that night. Ruth likes him, decides to carry on the deception a day longer. She discovers that the old woman is mentally queer, and that there is some mystery attached to the blue door.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX

AFTER a bath in the big, old fashioned bathroom that opened off her bedroom, Ruth dressed herself with great care. She put on the white linen blouse she had bought en route and set her naturally curly, short hair with the aid of a comb and a few hairpins.

Even though her future was as obscure and unpromising as a young woman's future can very well be, Ruth was happy in the midst of this strange and piquant adventure which had befallen her. For a few fleeting hours she was playing the role—and playing it convincingly—of a girl who has everything.

"No matter how drab and commonplace life is for me after to-day," she reminded herself, "I'll always have this funny little interlude to remember."

Yet even as she hummed a tune and anticipated John McNeill's arrival, her thoughts were beginning to grapple with the problem of to-morrow. She would leave at dawn, walking out the wide, tree shaded street that led to Cleveland. She'd manage to get a ride in that direction.

"Other girls do it," she told herself. "and no harm done. All you need is nerve and a level head. I'll develop both after I've knocked around a while."

John McNeill was arriving! Downstairs she heard his cheerful voice greeting Penny. He had evidently come in the back way from his home next door. Ruth was assailed with curiosity concerning John's house and she went to the window which afforded the best view of it. Only a tall alpine hedge separated the two big lawns.

The McNeill house was not nearly so large as this, its neighbor, and was of red brick instead of stone, but it was more homelike in spite of its old-fashioned contours (it actually was a little turreted on its roof). It still had an air of today. The lawn was perfectly kept, and Ruth could see comfortable pillow filled chairs on the long veranda.

"Miss Elaine!" called Penny urgently, and Ruth turned and ran down the stairs, all care laid aside.

JOHN McNEILL greeted her in the hall, taking both her hands in both of his. "We're doing bet-

John said, "I called you and you didn't answer. I had the feeling you might have left as suddenly as you came."

ter," he said, smiling down into her dark eyes. "We've developed a double handshake! Well, what have you been doing with your self?"

"Exploring the house," Ruth answered, and then added shamelessly, "There's so much I'd forgotten. The drawing room for instance."

John said, "There used to be a gold clock on the mantel. And some wax flowers at each end. Are they still there?"

"Yes," replied Ruth. "Come and I'll show you." She took him into the big room at the left of the wide entrance hall. A fire blazed on the hearth, throwing a warm, ruddy glow over the room.

"Well!" John's exclamation held surprise. "How'd you ever get Penny to shine up the old room and start a fire?"

"I did it myself," Ruth told him. "I found a bottle of furniture polish, too, and a funny contrivance called a 'curtain brush.' I used both. The effect's very nice, I think." She pointed with pardonable pride to the burgundy velvet curtains at the long windows and to the carved mahogany furniture which she had brightened.

"Gosh, yes!" agreed John, looking around. Then he looked at the girl herself. "But imagine Elaine Chalmers doing the family house cleaning! Who'd have thought it!"

It was the second time he'd spoken that name "Chalmers." Ruth piqued him in her mind before replying. "Why not? I used to go to girls' camps, you now." It seemed a safe answer.

"As I recall you," said John McNeill, "you weren't a very useful child. Ornamental, though. When you'd come back for one of your little summer visits all the kids in town would hang around to see what you were up to."

"And what was I up to, generally?" Ruth questioned.

"Plenty," he assured her. "Showing off for the little natives. Inviting them to parties and bossing them. Dashing around town in that chauffeur car with a foreign name—the typical little rich girl coming back to her mother's home town."

"WHAT a conceited young idiot I must have been in those days," Ruth remarked, enjoying herself thoroughly. "Can you recall anything at all nice about me?"

"Yes," nodded John McNeill. "You were always as game as the devil. They say you were never known to take a dare. You could outstride and outswim any kid in town."

"The advantages of wealth!" Ruth pointed out. "Swimming and horseback riding come easy to children who've been provided with beaches and horses and bridle paths." She realized that she was speaking a little bitterly. Back in her own dreary childhood there'd been a little girl in her town who'd owned a spotted pony, and who'd refused to let the shabby little replying. "Why not? I used to go light excursion, leaving Clinton 8:30 P. M. and Main Avenue 9:00 P. M.

SHE slipped from the room, closing the door behind her. She crossed the hall to the big dark library which was back of the drawing room. There she took from a shelf a book and carried it into the connecting drawing room, into the circle of firelight. She opened to the fly-leaf and found something which she had hoped was there, an old book plate bearing the Latin words, "ex Libris." Underneath, in a strong, clear masculine hand, was written, "Silas S. Hunter."

She made the test with several books and always found the same signature. In some cases "Silas S." and in other cases "Duncan" preceded the name Hunter.

She did not know how long she stood there drinking in the past, wondering about the old house and the people who belonged to it. She only knew that all

C. Y. O. BOXERS WILL PRESENT CLEVER STYLE

Stunkle, Starick are Dixon's Mutt and Jeff Men

Postponed matches between members of the C. Y. O. boxing team of Chicago and seven battlers representing this city will be fought at the airport hangar at 8:30 P. M. tonight with prospects of a large crowd present to see this classic.

Although there are battles ranging from lightweight, and featherweight to the heavyweight size, the feature round battles of which there are two on the seven bout card, match Harry Sparrow, 120 lbs. against Bernard Stunkle of Steward, and Andy Scrivani, 128 lbs. against Russ Ringenberger of Chillicothe.

Good three round encounters find Louis Viscioni of Moline tackling Jake Lamkin in the 147 lb. class, and Ray Wozniak challenging the long reach of Merle Starick, Chillicothean lightweight at 175 lbs. Jim Pazy will tangle with Sam Karben of Moline at 135 lbs.

Hinar Thomas is booked for a three round against LeHue at 160 lbs.

Watch Stunkle

Fighters most watched by fans will be Stunkle who has demonstrated perhaps the cleverest boxing in the featherweight division this year. Merle Starick who endeared himself to local audiences by stowing away Bim Gustafson via the knockout route two weeks ago and Billy LeHue who, the last time he fought here, knocked out Harry Kobleman of Tampico in ten seconds. Stunkle and Starick, direct opposites in physical size possess the same qualities of courage and stamina when on the defensive. Their rivals, in Dixon rings, all of whom extended them to the limit, were men who delivered plenty of punishment but the "Mutt and Jeff" of boys Flistiana in this section proved their ability to take it and come back for more. LeHue sent Kobleman to the canvas in such a hurry local audiences have not yet had time to appraise his fighting skill against other opposition.

Some idea of the calibre of the C. Y. O. boxing team from Chicago which will meet Dixon's fighters tonight at the airport at 8:30 o'clock may be gleaned from the following information concerning the seven boxers on the C. Y. O. team that will compete here.

Elwood McReynolds, Dixon battler who observed and fought with the Chicago boys against the New York Golden Gloves team said this morning that Harry Sparrow and Andy Scrivani will meet Dixon opposition in the feature bouts of the evening were champions which won their matches against New York. Jake Lamkin was an alternate on the Chicago team for the New York bouts while Camber, the 200 pound heavyweight slated to meet Raymond Doll was rated third or fourth best on the Chicago team. Ray Wozniak is C. Y. O. champion in his class. Golden Gloves champion and winner over his New York opponent.

Jim Pazy is second best champ, and Hinar Thomas is second best rated under Charles Wozniak, brother of Ray who appears here tonight.

FORMER YALE ALL-AMERICAN OF 1909 DEAD

New York, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Football followers of a quarter of a century ago today mourned Ted Coy, by many considered the greatest fullback in the history of the game.

He died yesterday at the age of 47. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at the Broadway Tabernacle church.

Coy played for Yale in 1907, 1908 and 1909, and was twice placed on Walter Camp's annual All-American team. Parke H. Davis and Camp both selected him for fullback on their respective all-time All-American teams.

He died in New York hospital of lobar pneumonia after a heart attack.

Alone in His Class

"Ted Coy stands alone in his class," W. W. (Pudge) Heffelfinger, a Yale football hero of an earlier generation, once said. "He ran with a high knee motion and was a powerful runner, being one of the hardest men of his day to down."

In the midst of Coy's career as a player Walter Eckersall, himself a brilliant star of a few years before, nominated him as the greatest player of all time.

T. A. D. Jones, Yale's former head coach, called him "certainly Yale's greatest fullback."

Coy married three times. His first marriage, to Sophie Meldrim of Asheville, N. C., ended in divorce in 1925. Two sons of this marriage survive him. They are Edward H. Coy, Jr., and Peter Meldrim Coy.

His second marriage was to the famous Jeanne Eagles, star of the play "Rain." This union also was dissolved by divorce on July 14, 1928. Three weeks later he married Lottie Bruhn of El Paso, Tex., who survives him.

ILLINOIS GRIDMEN WILL OPEN PRACTICE TUESDAY WITH BRIGHT PROSPECTS

Beynon, Froschauer Portman Lost to 1935 Illini

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 9.—An optimistic air pervades the Illinois football camp as Coach Bob Zuppke and his aides make ready for the opening of practice next Tuesday. Chiefly responsible for this feeling is the return of a seasoned group of players who played an important part in making possible the fine record of the Illini last year. Zuppke will look to these veterans, supported by reserves from last year and to the best of the sophomore crop.

Especially encouraging is the fact that the regular line of 1934, which played such heroic football, is intact with the exception of the guard position left vacant by the graduation of Chuck Bennis.

Jack Beynon, whose adept passing was such a factor in the Illinois attack for three seasons, Frank Froschauer, Grain Portman and John Fischer are backfield losses. Bennis, guard; Bill Waller and Bart Cummings, ends and Andy Dahl, tackle, are the other lettermen gone.

11 Lettermen

This leaves 11 lettermen, who are expected to be available:

Center—El Sayre

Guard—Ed Gryboski

Tackles—Capt. Chuck Galbreath, Arvo Antilla

Quarterback—Wib Henry

Halfback—Les Lindberg

Fullbacks—Howie Carson, John Theodore

Another experienced candidate will be Cliff Kuhn, who won his letter as a reserve guard in 1933 but was not in the university last fall. Zuppke has considered using him at end.

Tom Wilson, end, a letterman in 1930, who returned last February, will also probably be a candidate. Zuppke may shift him to the backfield.

Frederick Promising

George Frederick, 196-pound center, a reserve for two seasons, is regarded as a prominent candidate. John Lippold, guard, who reported late last season as a fullback but was shifted to the line, is another prospect. Among the other squadmen likely to be contenders are:

Guards—Henry Bruder, Clarence Polaski, Bob Cook, El Van Orman, Center—Stan Hutson.

Tackles—LaRue Morris, Bob Rourke, Whitney Smith.

End—Bob Wright

Quarterbacks—Cliff Gano, Bill Gibb, Jewett Cole.

Halfbacks—Bob Grieve, Earl Jansen, Steve Steib, Kendall Bradley, Bill Charlie (1931).

Jack Berner, an outstanding freshman tackle in spring practice, is considered one of the best sophomore line prospects. If there is any shortage of fullbacks, it is possible that Zuppke will try him out in the backfield, where he played in high school at Morris, Ill.

190 Lb. Soph Halfback

John Kanosky, 190-pound six-footer from Onarga, seems to be the sophomore halfback with the best chance to make the varsity grade.

Joe Carpenter, 190, East Moline, Andy Glosceki, 193, Taylor Springs, and Henry Moore, 185, Chicago, are sophomore tackles. New guards are Carl Knox, 177, Concord, N. H.; Dick Fay, 200 Atwood and Charles Stotz, 176, Chicago.

Dick Frede, 180, Chicago, and Michael Hrabovsky, 173, Whiting, Ind., are centers; Deane Prary, 196, Prophetstown; Bill Kusz, 183, Peoria and Leland Oliver, 168, Chicago, ends.

Bob Seiler, 175, Winnetka, son of Otto Seiler, Illinois drop-kicking star of 1910, Walter Pearson, 166, Maywood, and Lowell Spurgeon, 160, Centralia, are among the sophomore backs. John Strell, 168,

FLAG BATTLE GETTING MORE ACUTE DAILY

Giants Finding it Hard To Keep Up the Pace

BY HIGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

The National league pennant battle was as keen as ever today with the Cardinals and Cubs setting a pace that the Giants were finding hard to follow; the Tigers, despite a setback, still had a clear path to the American league flag; but the real news of the day was that the Browns were out of the cellar.

Few teams have had more dismal prospects than Rogers Hornsby's team did early this season, but by dint of persistent trading on the manager's part and hard work by the players the Browns have been built into a quite formidable organization. They stepped out yesterday to belt over the fading Athletics in a doubleheader, 9 to 4 and 7 to 5 to move a half game ahead of Philadelphia into seventh place.

Conquer Detroit.

Washington conquered Detroit's league leaders 4 to 3, attacking Roxie Lawson, clever Tiger rookie, in the late innings and getting the winning run on a ninth-inning walk.

The New York Giants, safely out of Cincinnati, began a new effort to get out of third place in the National league by trimming Pittsburgh 3 to 1 on the combination of Carl Hubbell's six-hit hurling and four straight hits by Manager Bill Terry.

The victory enabled the Giants to pick up a half game on both their rivals, and place one game behind the cubs, whose game with Boston was rained out, and 2 1-2 games behind the Cards.

St. Louis divided an odd doubleheader with the Phillies. Dizzy Dean pitched a four hit shutout in the opener for his 25th victory of the season, winning 11 to 0. Then, five more hurlers combined on another four-hit job only to have the Phils win it 4 to 2 by bunching two of the blows with a walk and two errors in the second inning. Poor base running and Orville Jorgens' effectiveness in the pinches left 16 Cardinals on the bases.

Red Sox Regain Fourth.

The Boston Red Sox regained fourth place in the American league by taking a bargain bill from Chicago's White Sox, 6 to 2 and 5 to 2.

The Yankees managed to reduce Detroit's lead to 8 1-2 games by taking two last-minute decisions from Cleveland. They won the opener in the tenth 3 to 2 and the afterpiece in the ninth, 5 to 4. Two were out each time when the odd run scored. Brooklyn protected fifth place in the National from Cincinnati's threats with a double victory over the Reds 8 to 4 and 6 to 4.

NAVY ELEVEN TO USE OPEN STYLE FOOTBALL PLAY

Only Four Veterans Return for 1935 Grid Campaign

This is one of a series on the outlook of major football teams by Richard H. Elliott, Associated Press Staff writer.

Annapolis, Ind., Sept. 9.—(AP)—The deceptive, open style of play that brought the Naval academy astonishing success last season will be used by the Sailors again this fall with a few added touches, if plans of the coaches work out.

Some adjustments probably will be necessary because of the loss by graduation of the sensational Buzz Borries and Bill Clark, backs, around whom the Navy 1934 attack hinged.

"Our strategy will depend upon the material available," said Lieut. Thomas J. Hamilton, head coach, as his stalwarts launched upon the training grind. "We were successful last year with open play and we may bring in something new this season."

Believe in Forward Pass.

"We all believe in the forward pass and also were successful with laterals last year. If the personnel is available you can look for more of it this season."

Hamilton and his aides have but four veterans around whom to build the Middy eleven. There are, however, some recruits from last season's unbeaten freshman outfit who promise well.

Hamilton is counting on traditional scrappy spirit of the Sailors to compensate for the loss of 22 men from last year's "A" squad, including 13 lettermen. He labelled the 1935 schedule "as tough as any in the country."

"But we are not without hope," he said.

Some Assistants Back.

Navy's aviator grid mentor will have pretty much the same group of assistants he had in 1934—his highly successful first year here. The only new men is Lieut. J. Weston Byng, end coach. Lieut. John H. Cross and Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, line coaches, and John N. Williams, backfield, are working with the schedule. Sept. 26—William Hamilton again.

Second of Van Wie's Titles Goes on Block

Chicago, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Another of the golf titles relinquished by Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, the women's western 72-hole medal play crown, went on the block today at the Northmoor Country Club.

Miss Van Wie passed up defense of the national championship at Minneapolis, and decided not to try for a third victory in the 72-hole event, the final major number of the Chicago golf season. She won in 1930 and repeated last year.

SCRIMMAGE IS BEGUN BY HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN

Purple and White Squad Beginning to Take Shape

Coach C. B. Lindell closed the first week of intensive football practice for his high school team by inaugurating stiff scrimmage sessions Saturday morning.

Several line-ups were tested and men shifted from post to post with abandon in the mentor's effort to size up a workable eleven that will possess sufficient punch for an opening game victory over Rock Falls in two weeks.

Although no definite eleven has been chosen for the varsity, indications point to an eleven composed of Miller and Klein ends, Marshall and Boos, tackles, Stultz and Parker guards, and Schumm center. In the backfield Swanlund at quarterback and halfback, Rebeck and Murphy halves, and Ankeny, Gullback, seem the likeliest combination. With the exception of Rebeck nearly the entire backfield will be green. Swanlund however saw some service with the lightweights last fall and cannot be considered an inexperienced man. Miller has not been out for practice yet due to difficulties in providing him with a uniform. Krug, who is also expected to see action has not yet appeared in the lineup either. McMillion will get the call for substitute end and is expected to hold down a regular end berth with the lightweights.
